Surf's up

THE FRANK LLOYD memorial bench, dedicated to a former city councilman, is a tranquil oasis along Scenic Road for this lone observer as he contemplates the Carmel Bay. This peaceful scene may change this week, however, as abnormally high tides of up to seven feet rise along the California coast. Scientists say this will mark the highest tides in the past 20 years. City council to consider hot issues

Beach project, water moratorium top agenda

By DAVID LELAND

FOR THE third month in a row the Carmel City Council will tackle the Carmel Beach Restoration Project Phase II. But if public sentiment is any indication, the council should move forward with the $750,000 beach project next week.

The council will meet at 4 p.m. Tuesday, Jan. 6, at the Carmel Woman's Club, located on San Carlos Street between Eighth and Ninth avenues.

The council has been cautious regarding the project, which provides a landscaped walkway with benches and access stairways along Scenic Road. But it appears Carmel residents are strongly in favor of the beach project, according to a survey taken by Mayor Clint Eastwood. (See related story in this issue.)

Eastwood's survey, which shows more than 70 percent of the respondents approving the project, may allay fears expressed by councilmembers Elinor Laiolo and Bob Evans.

It is important that either Evans or Laiolo begin endorsing the project if the city is to have a chance of securing a $200,000 grant from the California Coastal Conservancy, according to Greg D'Amborsio, director of administrative services.

Ambrosio added the conservancy requires at least a 4-1 vote to show unanimity in the council.

Evans appears to be the swing vote which would show strong support for the project within the council.

"I'm not vehemently opposed to the beach walkway," he told the The Pine Cone recently. "(But) it needs to be viewed as one project in the next five years."

Evans referred to the city's capital improvement program, which is a five-year plan required by the state, as well as optional programs Carmel desires.

Laiolo, however, remains unconvinced on both the project as a whole and accepting funds from a governmental agency.

"I'm very much in favor of the beach restoration," she said recently. "But I'm not sure the walkway is part of that relationship. (Besides), the city of Carmel has never accepted in the past funding for a project."

If the council approves moving ahead with the grant from the coastal conservancy, the money could be authorized as soon as February or March, according to Reed Holderman, coastal conservancy project coordinator.

THE COUNCIL will also have before it several other issues of importance. These are:

• The council will review a permanent water-use ordinance that would restrict any construction or business activity that increases water consumption in the city.

The permanent ordinance, if approved, will replace a similar urgency ordinance first adopted in September then refined and readopted in October and again in December.

The permanent ordinance, like the urgency ordinance, prohibits construction or new business activities that would increase water use in the city.

However, suggested changes by the planning commission, which reviewed the recommended permanent ordinance Dec. 10, allows for both residential and commercial expansion in an existing building through retrofitting or removal of plumbing fixtures.

After this first introduction the permanent ordinance will have second reading in February and, if approved, will become law in March.

Both the urgency and permanent ordinance are in response to the city's exceeding its annual water allocation from the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District. The city filed in November a lawsuit against the water district over the allocation

'Improvements' killing city

Dear Editor:

Are you interested in a weak voice from the silent majority of longtime residents who reside outside the village of Carmel, but have built their homes on the fringe?

As one of those who go back to when we paid $75 per month on the corner of Fourth and Dolores but moved, to escape the excessive rent, and built in Hatton Fields to be good citizens of Carmel, I feel a little abandoned by my town when issues arise concerning the lifestyle and beauty that surrounds us all.

More and more the improvements asked for by the new inhabitants and staff at city hall are opening the door to the demise of our traditional way of life.

The last few years have demonstrated that our future will include street lights, mail delivery and one-way streets.

But the issue most pressing to the community is a sidewalk at Scenic. What greater change could be made to our tradition than to build a sidewalk anywhere in Carmel?

The real issue along our waterfront is to replace the sadly dwindling cypress trees which have been removed, thinned and grown old. Is the city of Carmel making an effort to start seedlings to replace those rare and sensitive trees that only grow in this area and make this area unique? Are they an endangered species?

Will the city forester replace our cypress with redwoods as he has done throughout Carmel?

Please, planners and council — you are doing a fine job — take a hard look at what the priorities of Carmel really are and make your New Year's resolution to keep our valuables safe.

Ode to ice cream

Dear Editor:

A story of ice cream I soon will tell,
The story is set in our quaint little town of Carmel.
One day, a store called Swensen's was thrown out on its ear,
And not long after, Clint did appear.
Then restored he to the town an ice cream shop,
A place chock-full of goodies not lacking a drop.
This ice cream shop I will not name, but will mention,
For the price per cone brings much apprehension.
When Swensen's was here I would trot up to its door,
Knowing I would pay a reasonable price and no more.
It could be that this ice cream store is just a start,
And soon others will appear equal in number to our shops of fine art.
Maybe this letter will inspire a local boycott,
But the gullible tourists will pay nearly anything
For this fine commodity that is so eagerly sought.
I quote something a friend of mine once did hear.
The quote came from a man who was loitering near,
"This is Carmel, you're gonna pay here."
He seemed not to know who he was talking to,
For he was speaking to someone who, to this area,
Is anything but new.
Maybe he thought he was speaking to a tourist,
But in any case he was quite presumptuous.
So I end this story here now,
Hoping you don't walk out of the ice cream shop with your pocketbook saying, "Ow."

Thanks, Clint

Dear Editor:

Thank you, Clint Eastwood, for your acquisition of the Mission Ranch. We understand you bought it to save it from potential subdivision and that you intend to preserve it as open space. The people of the entire Carmel community certainly applaud you for this action.

For several years I have been a board member of the Big Sur Land Trust, an organization which has as a basic objective preservation of vital open space areas along the Big Sur coast, in Carmel Valley and on the Monterey Peninsula. We are proud and happy to have an ally in this objective.

Again, thank you!

Dog walkers 'indignant'

Dear Editor:

As charter members of the Bowzers and Bags Morning Carmel Beach Walking Society, we were rightfully indignant over Sister Ann Stango's recent letter to The Carmel Pine Cone complaining about dogs on Carmel Beach.

We all walk our dogs early in the morning, before breakfast, and we all carry a plentiful supply of plastic bags which we use to pick up our animals' contributions, being careful to place same, properly tied so as to be odor-free, in the refuse cans along the perimeter of the beach.

Our dogs are all friendly, gregarious, reasonably well-behaved and fun-loving, and they adore their time to romp on the beach unfettered by leashes. (It is, as you know, the only beach where dogs are permitted to run free.) Some of us come from Monterey each morning, some from the valley, some from Carmel city and some from the county area of Carmel, and all of us would hate to see the beach become off limits to our pets.

We would be less than honest, however, if we didn't agree with Sister Ann that walking the beach can be hazardous because of the pet owners who do not clean up after their dogs. We all carry extra bags and offer them to those who should use them. Unfortunately, not everyone accepts or, having accepted, uses them.

And, of course, not everyone is aware that there is a $25 fine in Carmel and on the beach for failing to clean up after one's dog. Signs posted to that effect might well help keep our beach far cleaner.

One might be tempted to point out to Sister Ann that the broken bottles, beverage cans and pop-top tabs left by unthinking beach habitues — not locals, we hope — are major contributors to the hazards of beach-walking, particularly for the barefooted!

Protect Scenic Road

Dear Editor:

Ocean Avenue and its surrounding commercial district are a testament to the importance of the tourist and the automobile. There is another part of Carmel-by-the-Sea that is equally important from an economic point of view: Scenic Road. Without that magnificent stretch of cypress trees, broad beach and unequalled view, this village would not have an Ocean Avenue, nor thousands of tourists — nor many of its present residents.

The proposed Beach Bluffs Improvement Plan to build a walkway along the beachside of Scenic Road offers a chance to protect the most beautiful and valuable part of Carmel-by-the-Sea from the spreading power of the automobile, a chance to ally ourselves with nature rather than surrender to the automobile and its ruthless demand for more parking space.

To walk along Scenic Road today does not offer a relaxing chance to enjoy a unique setting, rather it is another experience in coping with automobiles — parked and moving. Even the trees, many of them, are surrounded, pressed upon by macadamized parking places.

No space has been assigned to or provided for the resident or the visitor who wants to wander along that truly scenic beachfront. All the space — how remarkable and sad: all the space has been assigned to the automobile!

Resident and visitor can climb down those welcomed, new stairways to the beach itself. But, depending on the weather and the tides, on many days walking on the beach is not possible. And during winter months the beach is swept away, to reveal the magnificent slabs of rock beneath the sand.

We have all heard the arguments against the Beach Bluffs Plan: "too expensive," "better to leave Scenic Road natural," "there are not many people who walk along Scenic," etc. The rebuttals to these arguments are compellingly persuasive. We want to add only this:

There is nothing natural about Scenic Road as it is now. Its entire length is dominated by asphalt, curbs, marked parking spaces, parked cars and moving cars. On the beach side of that highway (and it is a highway, far wider than needed for a one-way scenic road), there are some scraggy bushes, hundreds of yards of struggling groundcover, dead grass, cypress trees that looked pained in their cramped, manmade environment and many, many yards of bare dirt. Just look at the area north of 13th Avenue.

Imagine how natural and lovely it would be to have a pathway that winds along the beach bluffs, amidst trees and bushes, separate from the asphalt, separate from parked and moving cars. A place for people!

To allow this potential alliance with nature to be defeated because of arguments that we need to preserve a certain number of parking spaces is truly shameful, even laughable. Should we not consider what has happened to La Jolla and many other once-lovely beach-front communities (including many along the Mediterranean) that have succumbed to the demands of tourists and automobiles?

Our dignity and our pride demand that we create the Scenic Road walkway as lasting evidence that the residents of Carmel-by-the-Sea value the reality of the promise in that name.

Press bashing

Dear Editor:

Kill the messenger. That's what the Greeks did when the ancient version of the reporter arrived with bad news. That's also the fate being recommended by some intellectual diehards who feel it would be better to muzzle the press than to hear the truth.

Press bashing has always been popular with a hero is questioned. It's predictable, like a muscle spasm constricting. And particularly in the case of Ronald Reagan, who has such a paternal relationship with the country. Actually, he's more like an ever-smiling grandfather who's nice to look at but doesn't make a lot of sense anymore.

That's been fine with the American public. Like the children and grandchildren, they prefer to get on with their own lives — making money, raising children, watching television — and suffer the dottering old fellow on holidays. Well, folks, the holiday is over. Grandpa has squandered the nest egg, and the mortgage is coming due.

The huge credit line has been sucked up like a long piece of spaghetti, and the news media has let us know with a loud slurp that the self-blindered taste test is over.

It's more than money, of course. It is our integrity as a people that has been spent. The United States is now the world's greatest debtor nation, our elderly are ill-treated, our children can't read, and we've got enough nuclear weapons to extinguish life any number of times. All in the name of national security. Sick, sick.

We can't blame the press any more than ourselves. We are the ones who have been zoning out with Peter, Tom and Dan, too busy to read the newspapers and magazines. It is impossible to understand historic events in 1½ minutes, it precludes any context at all. Nicaragua, the Middle East and relations with the Soviets are not one-day issues.

Failing to expand their news programs, ignoring the spiritual corruption which is Washington's staple, not asking the obvious questions — these are reasons for demanding an overhaul of the national news media. A more immediate need is to exercise our own minds, seek out the competent reporters and insist on the truth.

Over the next six months, the United States will face its gravest crisis in history. Neither Reagan nor Bush is fit to lead the country; is (incoming Speaker of the House) Jim Wright? Can we find moral people to be our secretaries of state and defense, attorney general, director of the CIA?

It is our obligation as participants in this democracy to read, ask questions and talk with our neighbors. Otherwise, our CIA, our Congress and our executive branch will ritually slaughter a few scapegoats and our country will pale and be dying in the bloody ashes.

Planning commission action

Kinnoull estate stays in city's specific plan

THE CARMEL Planning Commission turned down Dec. 17 attorney George Walker's bid to remove the Countess Kinnoull estate from the specific plan review and, in another agenda item, mulled over an Mary Klienbardt's residential care facility application.

The Countess Kinnoull estate removal from a specific plan will be considered Jan. 6 by the Carmel City Council. The Klienbardt application was continued and will return Jan. 14 to the planning commission.

In a non-public hearing item, Planning Director Diane White presented the commission with a plan to remove the Countess Kinnoull estate from the specific plan process and allow administrators to sell certain lots along Junipero Avenue.

The request was made by estate representative Walker to "move the process along as rapidly as possible," White said, adding that she suggested this alternative as a way to address the estate's concerns.

Walker also stated later in the meeting that there might be a request to increase the number of saleable lots within the property and that they had hired an engineer to review the property.

The commission is presently working on a specific plan for large property located at the south end of Torres Street, east end of Eleventh Avenue and, on the eastside, next to Mission Trails Park.

The commissioners voted 5-1, with Commissioner Bill Brown absent, in favor of continuing with the specific plan.

Commissioner Olof Dahlstrand cast the dissenting vote, stating he did not believe addressing the property as a subdivision rather than as a specific plan would make much difference.

However, Commissioner Bruce Roberts expressed the majority opinion.

"A specific plan gives us more direction," Roberts stated before the vote. "This is only the second time we have even addressed the issue and I don't think the discussion is enough to weigh the impact of taking it out of the specific plan."

If the commissioners voted to allow the sale of lots, White explained, it will end the specific plan process and put it into a subdivision category.

That would not relieve the commissioners of any powers, White said, but when questioned by the commission, she admitted it would limit some of the options they are currently investigating.

A specific plan, as a mini-general plan, considers a property in its entirety and includes a concept of general ambiance, character and relationship of the area to the rest of the city. Since it treats the area as a whole, it also allows for "trade-offs" between parcels in such things as in density. As a comprehensive project, it requires the developer and city to be working toward the same goals to be effective.

A subdivision is simply a more technical development, such as how many lots can be developed, with occasionally some restrictions or conditions attached.

Walker told the commission after the vote he was disappointed, adding that he felt this was a hardship case. The property had been in the specific plan process for a year, he said, and was costing the estate "$20,000 to $25,000 a month."

Countess Kinnoull left the property to animal and religious charities to be developed through an London-based estate administrator.

However, Roberts and other commissioners pointed out that the plan had been in the city for a year because the administrator had been difficult to find. Walker has only recently been retained by the estate.

"It would be an injustice to the city" to say it had been the cause in any delay, Roberts said, to the agreement of the other commissioners.

IN ANOTHER agenda item, the commissioners again continued Mary Klienbardt's application to tear down the Surf Tides motel on the corner of Mission Street and Fifth Avenue and build a 28-room ambulatory residential-care facility.

Though Margarite Alvarez of Country Home Care/Country Residential Care and Myles Williams of Carmel Inn for Seniors both cautioned the commission against voting for the application because of the belief there is a need for more of that type of services here, the commissioners agreed that economics was not a factor for them to consider and concentrated their remarks and concerns on height, density and traffic impacts.

Commissioner Olof Dahlstrand stated he had reconsidered his belief that a residential-care facility would not increase activity in the area.

"There will be families and visitors coming and going all day," Dahlstrand said.

Klienbardt submitted new architectural plans showing a building with four levels, three which would legally be considered "floors," Carmel Planner Brian Roseth told the commission.

The first level, an underground garage, is dug far enough into the ground to not legally be considered another story to the building, he explained.

The fourth level is for a stairwell that connects the back single story section with the front of the building. The rear of the building is on a higher grade than the front.

Commissioner Fred Keeble said he was worried the stairwell's additional height would be seen over the other buildings, a concern echoed by the other commissioners.

Commissioner Ed Hicks added that he didn't believe three stories was appropriate for the area. Additionally, though Kleinbardt's application reduced the number of rooms in the building from 33 to 28, the density remained higher than any other in the area. Williams, at the Dec. 3 meeting, asked the commission to consider what other use a building with that number of rooms could be put to if the residential-care facility financially failed.

In response to that concern, Roseth told the commissioners they could mandate that the building be constructed so the rooms could be closed off two at a time. That way, Roseth said, the building could be transformed into apartments.

The commission voted for a continuance and a resubmittal of plans.

Strasser Kauffman gears up for new board challenge

By DAVID LELAND

THE COMING year should be a time of increased communication and efficiency in Monterey County government. If you have any doubts, ask 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman, the Monterey County Board of Supervisors incoming chairwoman.

Strasser Kauffman is scheduled to be sworn in Jan. 6, in the courthouse in Salinas. She will be replacing 4th District Supervisor Sam Karas, who served as chairman for 1986.

In anticipation of her new duties, Strasser Kauffman began meeting with government officials in December. One of her goals is to maintain close contact with each of the 27 county department heads.

"I want to know what their priorities are for 1987," she said. "I want to minimize surprises."

As chairwoman of the board, Strasser Kauffman's duties will include representing the body in policy matters, setting the agenda (what the board will have before it) and running each Tuesday's meeting, held in the courthouse in Salinas.

This is in addition to the rigorous schedule she currently maintains, which has her available 24 hours each day. Strasser Kauffman's telephone number is listed in the public directory for her constituents' easy access.

"I don't mind," said Strasser Kauffman, referring to weekend and nighttime interruptions. "I like people to be able to reach me."

But she will need support from her constituents with her new duties, she said. She only has so much time.

"Residents of the 5th district will have to be patient," she said.

As chairwoman of the board, Strasser Kauffman will earn an additional $167 each month or an annual salary of $43,212.

Strasser Kauffman will serve as chairwoman throughout the year and then will step down and be replaced by 1st District Supervisor Marc Del Piero.

The one-year, rotating terms are a new method of leadership for the board. Strasser Kauffman said the change to district rotation was her first motion before the board when she was elected to office two years ago. Previously, the board had elected its chairperson.

"The chair was used as a power base more than it should be," she said. "The chair, when possible, should remain neutral."

STRASSER KAUFFMAN said she spent part of 1986 observing the county government's shortcomings, which she will attempt to correct as chairwoman. Her first job will be to bring coastal regulations back home.

"We want to finally get coastal protection under the authority of Monterey County," she said.

In order to accomplish this, the board must complete an ordinance which will encompass the county's four local coastal plans, thus bringing full authority to Monterey County.

Currently, if a person wants to build on coastal property, he or she must apply to the California Coastal Commission. (Its nearest office is located in Santa Cruz.)

Strasser Kauffman said she expects the board of supervisors to maintain the high standards of the coastal commission when authority is returned.

"I expect to county to be very protective of our coast," she said.

The supervisor also said, while chairwoman, she will attempt to speed up the permit process in the county. These permits include: building, variance and construction.

"I believe the public needs to be served more directly and efficiently," she said.

One way to expedite this process would be what Strasser Kauffman calls "one-stop shopping."

Now when a person wants to secure a permit they must go to the planning department, building inspector, environmental health department and flood control — all of these are located in different offices.

Strasser Kauffman would change this to make it more convenient for the person. One way is to have these agencies all in the same office.

FOR 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman, 1987 promises to be an exciting and busy year. Strasser Kauffman will not only execute her duties within her district, but will also be sworn in Jan. 6 as the Monterey County Board of Supervisors chairwoman. (David Leland photo.)

"This (the current situation) is very frustrating to the public," she said. "We need better coordination."

Another possiblility would be to make better use of the county building inspection office located on the peninsula. Strasser Kauffman said this office receives too little support from the main office in Salinas.

Often a person who lives on the peninsula must conduct their county business at the county offices in Salinas.

Strasser Kauffman also plans in 1987 to:

- Conduct an active campaign for the proposed San Clemente Dam project in the Carmel Valley. Strasser Kauffman said she hopes to have some positive results this year.
- Work on capital improvement projects such as the hydro-electric power project at the Nacimiento Dam.
- Expand the jail, located in Salinas.
- Complete the sheriff's public safety building, located in northeast Salinas.

system, and negotiations between the two agencies continue.

The permanent ordinance is automatically nullified if the water district abandons its allocation system.

An important provisions in the permanent ordinance allows the transfer of water-unit credits within the same structure.

This provision permits remodels or additions in both residential and commercial buildings if the applicant retrofits the building below current standards set by the city. Using the Monterey Peninsula Water District system for determining water use per connection, whatever water use is saved through the more stringent retrofit can be used to add more fixtures.

City code standards now require retrofit to 3-gallon-per-flush toilets and low-flow shower heads. To obtain water-use credits, the applicant would have to retrofit to ultra-low flush toliets, at a maximum of 1.5 gallons per flush and ultra-low-flow shower heads. Removal of existing water fixtures, such as a hose bib, would also be counted toward the credits.

The ordinance also mandates retrofitting within six months of all hotels and motels with low-flow shower heads.

The passage of the urgency ordinance in September stopped issuance of final permits for numerous new commercial and residential projects around the the city.

• The council will listen to arguments suggesting that the city house its proposed Harrison Memorial Library Annex in the vacant Crocker Bank building, located on Mission Avenue and San Carlos Street.

Currently, the city has been proceeding in a joint venture with the Pine Inn to build an underground parking lot at Lincoln Street and Sixth Avenue, which will house the library annex on top of the structure.

According to Doug Schmitz, city administrator, the Crocker building is for sale and carries a price tag of $2,250 million. The

Eastwood polls voters on beach project

By DAVID LELAND

LET'S SEE, I can't remember if there have been five surveys or six. But just to make sure, Mayor Clint Eastwood has taken yet one more poll on the Carmel Beach Restoration Project Phase II.

The latest poll, conducted by Eastwood at his own expense ($880), asked each of Carmel's 4,200 registered voters their opinion on the beach project. The direct-mail poll sent a postcard to each voter.

At press time, 1,287 (31 percent) had responded by dropping their card in the questionnaire box at the Carmel Post Office. Of these, 72 percent favored the project, while only 28 percent opposed it.

Eastwood said he favored direct mail because of its non-political nature, or, sudden impact, if you will.

"I thought, why don't we just slip one out there that doesn't allow people to pick up sides," Eastwood said.

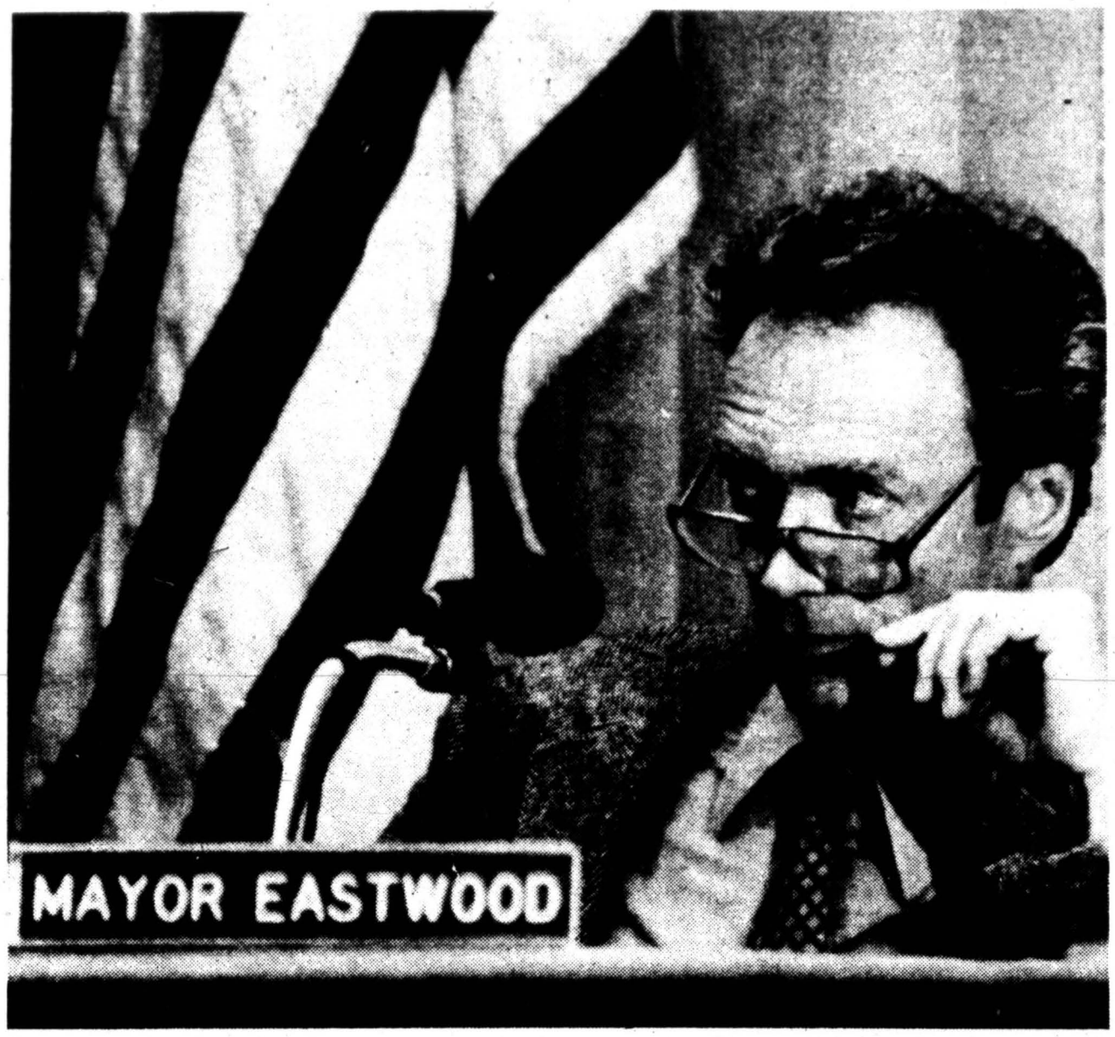
An option the mayor rejected to gather public sentiment was a special election, which he felt would have yielded a smaller percentage of voter turnout. Eastwood said a special vote would probably have only brought 10 percent of Carmel voters to the polls.

A special election also would have cost the city as much as $10,000, according to Sue Hutchinson, aide to the mayor.

Hutchinson was enthusiastic about the current poll.

"It's an idea that's definitely working," she said. She added that the mayor will surely receive more response to the poll before the next city council meeting.

The postcards Eastwood sent state that a vote is scheduled to be taken by the Carmel City Council on the beach project Jan. 6.



IN AN effort to get an accurate appraisal of public feeling on the Carmel Beach Restoration Project Phase II, Carmel Mayor Clint Eastwood has conducted his own poll. Results show more than 70 percent of registered voters in favor of the project. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Eastwood describes the beach project in the survey as follows: "The plan replaces present beach accessways and adds natural vegetation to help stabilize the bluffs and banks along Scenic Road. A pedestrian trail, benches and drinkng fountains will be added and where the bluff is too narrow, space for the decomposed granite trail wil be made by narrowing Scenic Road.

"This will provide for 102 parking spaces. The cost for construction is estimated to be at least $750,000; $200,000 of which may be paid by a grant from the California Coastal Conservancy."

Eastwood's current survey comes in the wake of several other surveys conducted. All have shown residents favoring the beach project.

Most recently the Carmel Pine Cone conducted a telephone survey which showed 69 percent approve moving ahead with the project.

Also, a Scenic Road Property Association survey taken earlier this fall showed approval, a show of hands at a Town Hall meeting in November indicated approval and public sentiment at both October's and November's city council meetings seemed in favor of the project.

Carmel Heritage places spotlight on city's history

By DAVID LELAND

WHEN MAYOR Clint Eastwood recently purchased Mission Ranch, he praised the Carmel Heritage for its work. Eastwood further intimated that this group would have much to say about the ranch's future use. At this time many residents asked: "What the heck is a Carmel Heritage?"

Well, Carmel Heritage is a group of locals who have taken the job of preserving Carmel's history. It is a task which includes taping oral histories of longtime residents, identifying historical sites and making historical resources available for both residents and visitors.

Membership has soared over the past three years, rising from 19 members in 1983 to more than 300 residents now taking part in preserving Carmel's history.

Carmel Heritage board member Helen Wilson said one need not be a longtime resident to join the group.

"If you love Carmel and want to preserve its heritage we'd love to have you as a member," she said.

It was Wilson who began wooing Eastwood on the purchase of Mission Ranch, even before last April's election.

At that time Mission Ranch was slated for development, with 61 townhouses being proposed for the historic 20-acre parcel, located just south of Carmel.

Wilson's goal was to stop any development and keep things as they are — she knew that this was her most important task.

"I knew if we could stop the developers, we'd find the money (to buy Mision Ranch) someplace," Wilson said.

Eastwood agreed and purchased the land for about $5 million. He vowed to follow Carmel Heritage's advice on steering the property to its best use.

"He loves the property and we love him," Wilson said.

Wilson said the Carmel Heritage plans to use one of the buildings at Mission Ranch for a museum — this has long been a goal of Carmel Heritage.

Wilson remains ecstatic about Eastwood's dedication to Carmel history and inclusion of Carmel Heritage.

"Working with Clint was a delight," she said. "He wants input from our group to put Mission Ranch to its best use. It's frosting on the cake."

WHILE CARMEL Heritage may appear too good to be true, it also has its own history, which was not always smooth sailing.

While Carmel Heritage is anything but a political group, its beginnings are tied to "Old Carmel," an organization formed in 1976 during a bitter dispute over a plan to demolish the Village Corner, a popular restaurant on the northeast corner of Dolores Street and Sixth Avenue.

Its founding members Frank Lloyd, Randy Reinstedt, Ben Lyon and Village Corner owner George Rockwood began meeting in the kitchen of Rockwood's cafe, plotting a way to stop the Bank of America from ousting the restaurant from its home.

It was agreed that Reinstedt, a teacher and historian, would hold an autograph party for his new book in order to gain support for the cause.

"Randy held the autograph party and it changed the history of Carmel," said Lyon in a letter written in 1984. "Old Carmel became the instant political party of the local resident."

Lyon said that even though the Old Carmel movement eventually fell victim to a "variety of personality failures," the residential orientation of the city government had remained.

Another problem Lyon encountered with attempting to have a political party preserve Carmel was that it could not be tax exempt. At the urging of Reinstedt, Lloyd and Howard Brunn, Lyon set out to form an organization which would meet the original purpose.

"(We wanted) a foundation that would help to guard the quality of life of our town and enhance that quality in a variety of ways, as yet unexplored," Lyon wrote.

The result was "Carmel Tomorrow," an organization with an excellent board of directors, a long struggle to achieve tax-exempt status and a name that satisfied no one.

The group remained in a holding pattern until 1983, when it elected Virginia Stanton president and changed its name to Carmel Heritage.

Currently the 16-member board is considering a master plan for the city to follow in preserving its heritage.

"A comprehensive master plan for the conservation and protection of Carmel's historic and cultural resources should be promulgated and adopted as the keystone of this organization's set of immediate goals," said board member Lacy Faia.

"This plan will serve as an effective instrument for the generation of public awareness and support for Carmel Heritage's programs and activities," she said.

Faia added that Carmel Heritage's plan should be officially adopted as part of the city's general plan.

Carmel Heritage is currently seeking new members to help accomplish its goals.

"Carmel Heritage should seek as members highly motivated people who will be willing to devote their time, energies and talents to the conservation, preservation and protection of Carmel's unique and precious historic values," Faia said.

Those interested in further information may write Carmel Heritage, Box 701, Carmel, Calif. 93921 or call Helen Wilson at 624-6692.

Happy New Year!

A NEW YEAR'S WISH FOR CARMEL

If I had a wish for Carmel it would be that the place should revert to the exact state of things that existed more than 14 years ago. There were few people then, and all of them had simple tastes. Neither architect nor landscape gardener had as yet succeeded in making noticeable changes from the original landscape. If my wish were impossible, and I had a second choice, it would be that those who have come since the old days, and those who are yet to come, would do their best to keep intact what beauties of nature and what simplicity of life are still left.

ROCK OBTAINED FOR OCEAN AVENUE WORK

Just in the nick of time before the week-long storm broke, members of Bill Askew's street crew went down the coast to Garapatos canyon and took out a couple of loads of "granite" rock to be used in realigning the center parking strip on Ocean Avenue. Scheduled to begin this week, the work was held up because of the rains, but weather permitting, will start next week.

BRIEFS...

Today Councilmen Francis Whitaker and Eben Whittlesey accompanied City Clerk Larry Rose to Soledad Correctional Facility. Object of the trip was to see if the facility's woodworking shops can provide suitable new individual tables for councilmen in the council chambers at city hall. The new tables will replace the present large library-type tables which crowd the council's dais.

MINI-BUSES UP FOR DISCUSSION AGAIN

The Carmel City Council will once more consider the concept of a mini-bus system for Carmel. The service, given the go-ahead by the council last May, is presently under a reassessment and the subject is scheduled to come up at the Jan. 11 council meeting.

Although city approval for the system was given eight months ago, implementation has been held up by the county, which did not approve financial participation until November. The hold up prompted Carmel Motoring Company's Pat Linington to ask the city for reconsideration of their May rejection of his proposal over that of Monterey Peninsula Transit (MPT).

At the Jan. 11 council meeting, council members will consider two things: should Carmel embark on a mini-bus program at all, and if so, should it stick with MPT or go with Linington?

SURFERS UNDAUNTED BY SHARK ATTACK

By Robert Miskimon

"When your number's up, it's up and there's not a damn thing you can do about it."

Carmel Valley attorney Alexander Henson, a 20-year veteran surfer who is married and the father of three young children, summed up the attitude of many surfers on Carmel Bay.

After the fatal attack by a great white shark last week on a Pacific Grove surfer, one might have expected to find surfers polishing their boards instead of braving the waters.

But just the opposite was true. Many experienced surfers said they considered sharks just one of the risks involved in their sport.

If anything, the grisly discovery of 25-year-old Lewis Boren's chewed-out surfboard on the beach at Asilomar, followed by his mangled body washing ashore, seems to have only heightened the sense of danger and excitement for most surfers. At least, that's what surfers on Carmel Bay said in the wake of the attack.

"Everybody has their calling card," said 22-year-old Peter Carr of Carmel, a perennial surfer who knew and had surfed with Boren, a fallen comrade. "When yours is up there's nothing you can do about it."

"We just cut through the fanfare and red tape and got the job done," he said. Government agencies invovled in developing the trail included Parks and Recreation, Conservation Corps, State Coastal Conservancy, Coastal Commission and Caltrans.

HAPPY NEW YEAR!

The Village Aqua-Duck has a New Year's Resolution that we can all share that deals with water:

CONSERVE TODAY — PRESERVE TOMORROW

As a result of all of our efforts, our water consumption is going down — but not enough!

The "rainy" season is finally here and what better time to start our new water conservation habits. SUGGESTION: While our yards and gardens are being watered naturally, let's take the time to review the many brochures available to help us maintain our landscaping through efficient and conservative water use.

These informational brochures will be available to you at the Carmel-by-the-Sea Post Office on January 6th from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon. Linda Morris of the California-American Water Company and representatives of the Carmel-by-the-Sea Planning Department will be there to answer your questions and share water saving hints with you. Please stop by and talk with them.

THE SANTA MOUSE
By Melissa Valdez

One dark snowy night there was a hole in a warm house. A family of mice lived there. It was Christmas. Up in the North Pole there was a mouse. He was the only Santa Mouse. He always spent Christmas delivering presents. He went to every mouse hole to put cheese and toys in all of the stockings. In the morning all the family woke up. They were excited and every day they had cheese and the children mice played with their toys, and they lived very happy.

THE CHRISTMAS BEFORE LAST YEAR
By John Pfeiffer

The Christmas before last year my parents planned to visit some relatives in the north. We drove to a train station and waited till a train came. When the train came we got in and sat down. The train started and we went away from the train station.

We went a lot of places in the train and finally we got to the other train station, and then we watched the model train. The board had little hills on it and a little tunnel on the top. Then my uncle drove his car into the parking lot, and we got in and he drove us to his house. We stayed at their house till Christmas.

On Christmas we opened our presents and stuck them in their car till it was time to go. When we left we rode to the train station in their car. When the train came we waved good-by and got in the train, and the train went away. When the train stopped we got out and went to the parking lot and got into our car and drove home.

THE SNOW BOY
By Erinn Cardwell

Long ago, far away, there were lots of kids. They wanted to build a snow boy. So they did. But it didn't look good. It needed a cap, and they found a cap. The snow boy came to life, and they played snowball and had lots of fun.

SANTA CLAUS

One night I was up all night. It was Christmas night! I saw Santa Claus but he did not see me. I was hiding by my steps. I went outside and I got the ladder and I climbed it. I got up on the roof, and I got in the sled.

When Santa Claus looked behind him, he saw me in his sled. I asked him if I could go around the world with him. He said yes I could. I went with him and I saw the world. When he took me home he went very fast. When he got to my house my mom was waking up, but she did not see Santa Claus. I was tired. I was by the Christmas tree. I got a lot of toys.

CHRISTMAS EVE
By Jami Smythe

Last Christmas I heard reindeer hooves on the roof of my house when I was laying on my bed. I tried to look out of the window but the curtains were closed. The reindeer's hooves sounded like footsteps. When morning came, I told my brother and mom and dad but they didn't believe me. So they never knew the truth.

CHRISTMAS EVE
By Georgia Benigni

It was the night before Christmas. I was still at school. Suddenly the teacher and everybody else disappeared! The Christmas tree began growing! All the ornaments and angels began growing, too. The toy nutcracker and the train set grew big. Even the toy houses began growing. The angel on top of the tree led me to the toy train. The nutcracker got into the train after us. The train went to the North Pole.

At the North Pole the train stopped next to a hole in the ground. There were steps leading down. The nutcracker, the angel and I went down the steps. At the bottom of the steps were Santa Claus and his elves! Before I could say a word, everything disappeared and I was at school writing a Christmas story.

THE MOST IMPORTANT DAY OF MY LIFE

By Keet Starr Beck-Brattin

The most important day of my life was the first and probably the last time my sister walked. You probably think that is nothing, but my sister is handicapped. Now she can't walk, talk or even crawl.

She walked at Carmelo School in 1981. When my sister, whose name is Bree, walked I just felt good all over. What I remember best was my grandma holding Bree's upper body brace, my mom sitting about five feet away, and my grandma letting go of the brace.

I remember I didn't touch Bree, but I made sure that she wouldn't fall as she walked to my mom. None of us were speaking. We were too happy to speak.

THE CHRISTMAS SNAKE

By Paul Lewellen

Once upon a time there was a snake that was very lonely and wanted a place to live of its own. The snake lived at the North Pole.

One Christmas Eve Santa and his helpers were loading Santa's sleigh and the snake heard them talking about all of the places Santa was going to visit that night. When no one was watching, the snake slithered through the cold snow and climbed on the sleigh. When Santa took off he didn't notice the snake who was wrapped around a present disguised as a bow on one of the presents.

Santa landed on a rooftop and took the present that the snake was wrapped around and jumped down the chimney. Santa put the present under the tree, filled up the stockings and left. The snake looked around and saw that no one was there so he climbed off the present and on to the tree, disguising himself as a garland.

Christmas morning the children hurried in and started to open presents. A girl yelled, "Look, I got Rainbow Bright!" Then the boy noticed the snake hanging in the tree and said, "Thanks for the snake, Dad." Then the boy put the snake in his old lizard aquarium. The snake was happy because he had finally found a home that he liked.

Carmel woman wants to leash dogs on the loose

By DAVID LELAND

A ONE-woman effort to stop dogs from running loose in the Mission Fields neighborhood has begun to pick up momentum, but for some the damage has already been done.

For Candice Gregory, who has lived in the area for a year and a half, it has been difficult to stand by and watch the harm done by dogs whose owners choose not to keep them locked up or on a leash.

"It's not that I don't like dogs," Gregory said. "I feel the safety of the children is at stake and also the safety of the dogs."

Last October Gregory came home to find her calico cat, Purry, lying dead in her driveway. Purry was the victim of an attack by a neighboring dog.

That was the last straw.

Less than a year earlier, another one of her kittens, Sissy, had also been killed on her front lawn.

This was especially distressing, she said, because the cat's body was discovered by her and her daughter, Meghan.

After the most recent attack Gregory called the SPCA, which she had done numerous times before. But she also decided to mount a concerted effort to keep dogs on their leashes. She sent 170 letters to Mission Fields residents, an area which is outside Carmel city limits and is under county jurisdiction for animal control.

The letter asks: "Where was your dog last night?" and "Do you know there is a county-wide leash law?"

The county leash law states that it is illegal for owners to let their pets run at large any time, day or night.

Gregory's letter also cites several horror stories which have occurred within the past two years in the Mission Fields neighborhood. These include:

- A boy riding his bike was chased into a parked car by a dog. The boy lost his front tooth.
- A jogger was bitten while running through the neighborhood.
- Mehgan Gregory was scratched in several places by a dog who, on a walk with its owner, tried to attack Mehgan's kitten which she was holding.
- Two different families had their dogs impregnated by dogs running at large. Both female dogs were locked in their backyards when the loose dogs jumped the fences.

THUS FAR 10 neighbors have responded to Gregory's letter; each has had problems with dogs running free. But none could come up with a viable solution — except the obvious.

"It's up to the owners," Gregory said. But she added that many dog owners believe the comfort of their dog is more important than the neigborhood residents.

Gregory said one neighbor has been cited three times for his dog running loose. While the man has built a fence, the dog, a combination black Labrador and poodle, has managed to break free and wreak havoc.

Most recently the dog cornered a PG&E meter reader on Gregory's front lawn. About 10 minutes earlier the reader had asked the dog's owner to keep the dog tied up.

The problem is also frustrating for the SPCA, who must spread officers throughout a large area and cannot respond to calls at night, except for emergency ones.

"We can't be everywhere at once," said Robin McRae, SPCA public relations director. McRae added the non-profit SPCA has nine officers and one radio dispatcher to provide animal control from Monterey County down to Greenfield.

The Mission Fields neighborhood isn't the only place where there is a problem with dogs running free, destroying livestock, and biting or threatening residents.

"Dogs are running at large everywhere," McRae said. "If we put someone there full time that would be the only way to solve the problem."

McRae supported Gregory's view that it is up to the dog's owner to restrict the dog's travels. In fact, she said if a dog bites another person the owner is responsible.

If a person is cited for not obeying the leash law they are subject to a fine, which varies in amount depending on the area where the citation is issued.

For dog owners who do not have children but do have concerns regarding their pets, Gregory addressed a portion of her letter to them.

"Think of your dog's safety too," she wrote. "A couple of weeks ago I helped a woman scrape up and put into a bag the severed remains of her long-time family pet terrier. It was hideous. The dog had strayed off and was hit by several cars and torn to pieces."

Whether Gregory's letter and pleas will do any good remains to be seen. But one thing is certain, the neighborhood is now aware that at least one person has had enough and, most assuredly, has a bone to pick with negligent dog owners.

But Schmitz said the price tag for the Crocker building could rise after remodeling, which may make it a more costly venture than the current project.

Library officials have also made it clear that they would prefer to have library business centrally located. The proposed project is across the street from the Harrison Memorial Library.

- The council will hear a report concerning traffic on Lincoln and Fourth avenues, which was studied by a Monterey engineer.

At December's city council meeting, concerned residents of that area requested traffic be routed one-way on Fourth Avenue starting at Dolores Street and suggested various measures to slow cars down and make the area safer.

The engineer's report recommends posting a 15 mph sign on Dolores Street before Fourth Avenue, and cars parking on Fourth Avenue between Dolores and Lincoln streets should be required to turn their wheels toward the curb.

According to Schmitz, the street will not be made one-way at this time, but the matter will be studied further. City safety officials had expressed concern that making Fourth Avenue one-way would slow down emergency calls which travel on that street.

- The council will consider a recommendation from the Carmel Foundation in regard to an underground parking lot at Fifth Avenue and Dolores Street, which would be in conjunction with the proposed senior citizens housing project.

The foundation's plan calls for building 23 units on the vacant lot and needs the city to respond to building a parking lot. The underground lot has a proposed maximium of 36 parking spaces.

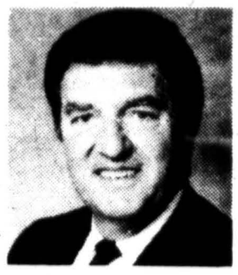
CARMEL SON TO PLAY FLUTE AT NATION'S MAJOR CONCERT HALLS

Edward McGowan, son of Carmel residents Mr. and Mrs. Joseph McGowan, will be playing the flute with a 90-member orchestra in a national tour beginning February.

The Interlochen Arts Academy orchestra, composed of high school-aged musicians from 26 states and seven other countries, will be on tour from Feb. 8 to 14 with performances scheduled for the Kennedy Center for the Performing Arts, Feb. 9, and New York's Alice Tully Hall, Lincoln Center Plaza, Feb. 12, as well as at the Duke Ellington School in Washington, D.C., and at Westminister College, Princeton, N.J.

The Interlochen orchestra has built a national reputation as one of the country's finest pre-professional orchestras. The orchestra has performed in many of the nation's major concert halls including Chicago's Orchestra Hall, Severance Hall in Cleveland, New York's Carnegie Hall, Ann Arbor's Hill Auditorium and Detroit's Ford Auditorium. The orchestra is heard regularly on "Music from Interlochen" which is broadcast nationwide by National Public Radio.

DOLLARS & SENSE



By Anthony Piazza & Marshall Bloom

Of cottages and dividends

A FRIEND of ours recently sold a small residence of the Jack London era, a house harkening back to the balmy days of Carmel's adolescence. Of course our friend did not buy the house back then but it seemed that way when he totaled up the old capital gains. It's no news to anyone that Carmel real estate is a valuable commodity.

What has changed of late is the way we look at capital gains. Whether you collect rent or sell for a profit, the tax treatment is now the same. All the dollars go into the mighty tax system as ordinary income.

Which brings us back, for one final look, at the dividend side of your investments. Whether you purchase a Carmel cottage or 100 shares of Pacific Telesis, you only have to pay once. That's what your broker calls the cost basis.

Now the rent on your cottage, which you hope to raise once a year or so, constitutes a rising yield in your cost basis. The same can be said for the dividends of Pacific Telesis or any of the other regional phone companies spun off from the old AT&T.

Back in 1984 Pac Tel paid a dividend of $2.70 per share. You could have purchased the stock (your cost basis) for about $30 per share (the range for that year was from $26 to $35). Your initial yield would then have been 9 percent. Currently, however, the dividend is $3.04 and your cost basis remains the same, $30 per share. Your yield has gone up past the 10 percent mark. Coincidentally, the price of Pac Tel has approximately doubled since 1984. But that's another story and we're only talking about dividends, about earning more to fight off the effects of the new tax law.

What we're trying to say is that both the rent on the Carmel cottage and the dividends on good stocks have value that the new tax law does not diminish.

Happy New Year!

Zinc gluconate tablets may cure cold sufferers

In a recent medical study, cold sufferers who sucked on zinc gluconate tablets recovered from their colds much sooner than normal.

By the end of the seven-day experiment, 90 percent of the zinc gluconate treated subjects were symptom-free versus only 49 percent of those taking a placebo. The average cold lasts 10 to 12 days. In fact, 22 percent of the zinc gluconate recipients (compared to none of the controls) were free of cold symptoms within 24 hours.

Zinc is trace mineral needed daily by the body for over 90 different enzymes. Zinc deficiencies retard growth and wound-healing, reduce resistance to infections, and can cause memory loss, loss of taste and smell, hair loss, body odor, skin diseases, prostate problems, impotence, infertility and apathy. Most Americans get only 75 percent of their recommended daily requirement of zinc.

Zinc gluconate is an inexpensive mineral supplement found in most health food stores.

Researchers think that sucking on the zinc gluconate tablets is more effective than just swallowing them. During the study, cold sufferers sucked on one table every two hours while they were awake. Zinc is known to stop rhinoviruses (cold, herpes, pox and some tumor viruses) from replicating in test tubes. The scientists theorize that keeping the zinc gluconate in contact with your mucous membranes kills the germs where they lurk. Zinc may also attract certain white blood cells to help fight viral infection and may inhibit the release of histamine, a natural compound that produces the runny nose associated with colds.

BUSINESS BEAT

Shut down

THE NEW Year is starting off with some unhappy news.

On Jan. 1, Studio Theater owners Elizabeth and Richard Barrett officially closed the 28-year-old dinner playhouse on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh. One of the oldest continuously-running dinner theaters in the United States, it had been the model for other such enterprises across the country, Elizabeth Barrett said.

The Barretts are closing down because their lease was up and the terms of their new lease offered by landlord Bob Evans were "unacceptable," she said. (Evans is better known to Carmelites in his role as a Carmel city councilman.)

"We've been doing well financially, all our bills are paid, and we're in good financial shape," Barrett added. Their last performance was Nov. 29, appropriately named It had to be You.

Four years ago the Barretts purchased the business from the Evans family, the theater's second owners.

They have been looking around for other locations outside of Carmel, Barrett said, but it might take some time before the theater reopens — if it even happens. Activities they both wanted to pursue have been on hold for some time because the theater demanded so much attention.

"Richard has been accepted to law school (Monterey College of Law) and I was a free-lance writer and I hope to get back to doing that," she said.

Travel writing and local history are the two subjects she's most interested in reactivating, Barrett said. From what she said, she certainly could talk about some interesting tours. Her last "stint," Barrett explained, was when she was working for American School in Iran. She was emergency air lifted out of the country two weeks before Ayatollah Khomeni took over. Not the regular bed 'n breakfast review.

When you're into drama, you're into drama.

SUSHI 'N THINGS

Kogetsu in The Crossroads is offering more than Japanese arts and crafts these days. Owners Jim and June Tajiri transformed one-half of the tucked-away shop into another Japanese tradition — a sushi bar.

The 20-seat restaurant is "very intimate and hidden away," Jim Tajiri said, and they are hoping to build up a group of regular customers. Of course, first-timers are always welcome, too.

June Tajiri does the honors as sushi chef, an art she practiced for 10 years when they owned Toro Japanese restaurant on Highway 1.

KEVIN COMSTOCK from Los Gatos reads about the closing of the Studio Theater on Dolores Street. The 28-year-old Carmel dinner/theater house officially closed on Jan. 1 after owners Elizabeth and Richard Barrett could not reach an agreement on the terms for a new lease. (Holly McFarland photo.)

Sushi lovers will recognize dishes like Majuo (tuna), Tekkamaki (sushi roll with black seaweed and tuna on the side), kappamaki (cucumber/black seaweed) and the California Roll (avocado and crab roll with sesame sauce and tuna on the side). There's more, of course, but my Japanese is severely limited so that's as far as I go.

In addition to sushi, the sushi bar offers other Japanese dishes like spare ribs, tempura shrimp and teriyaki beef and chicken. Also available are tea, sake and Japanese and American beers.

Everything on the menu can be ordered for takeout, Tajiri said, and they also pre-prepare a sushi tray which is specially priced for takeout.

Lunch is from 11:30 a.m to 2:30 p.m. and dinner is from 5 p.m. to 9 p.m.

IRISH SHOP GOING

After 23 years, the Irish Shop on Ocean between Dolores and Lincoln is shutting its doors. They lost their lease, owner Sue Kallay explained, because the building is a part of the Adolph LaFrenz estate, and the heirs want to sell.

The shop, which sells country-wear made in Ireland, has until the end of February. However, if they sell off their inventory, it will close earlier, she said, and she is not looking for a new location. So another one down.

AROUND TOWN

The Shell Shop in Carmel Plaza will be closing probably Jan. 6 to make way for Talbot's. Owner Charles Sites is looking for another spot, but has been unsuccessful so far. Other Plaza shops will be shifting around to clear a spot for the larger department store from the east...Tom Sweeney and Bill Soskin have purchased the Village Inn on Junipero and Ocean from Peter Hanson. Sweeney recently purchased the Normandy Inn on Ocean and sold the Horizon Inn on Mission. Busy, busy...Herbert Fischbach of San Francisco is purchasing Dilli Deli on the corner of Ocean and Monte Verde. Actually, his son John will take over after the first of the year, Fischbach said.

AND THE WINNER IS...

It's Bud's Pub pulled a winner Dec. 26 from the "hat" — barrel actually — for a cruise on the Queen Elizabeth II and five days at a "deluxe" hotel in London, return via the Concorde that Bud Allen, the Pub owner, was sponsoring.

They got lucky in Lodi. A resident of that city, R. W. Smith, had the stub that found its way out of the barrel first. R. W., however, had not been notified by press time, so no word on whether he or she is taking me with them.

Pub manager Kevin Knox also drew two more tickets for dinner for four at the restaurant and those winners were Swede Dawson of Carmel and someone in Coldriver, Calif.

There were over 8,000 entries I hear, since the contest started in September.

Now, I realize I printed in November that the cruise would be on the Queen Mary — which probably came as a big surprise to the city of Long Beach. I hope R. W. isn't too disappointed when he or she finds out that the Queen Mary will be staying in Southern California.

HEAVY METAL

Don't worry, its not done with a six-string electric quitar.

Roger Bailey is opening an artist's metal finishing shop on Fourth and Junipero. At Roger's Metal Finishing, Bailey explained he will polish, buff and refinish metal sculpture for local artists.

The work can include as much preparation as the artist wants, from just the polishing to mounting the work on a wooden base. Bailey said the shop can handle any of those finishing touches needed by a raw casting before it debuts before the public.

In addition to works of art, Bailey said he fixes and refinishes antique metal and polishes up brass. No newcomer to the field, he's moving his workshop from Seaside where he's practiced the craft for about 13 years.

Anyone for credit?

ON A PLANE from the East, American Airlines ran a survey with their passengers to determine who was carrying the most credit cards, and would you believe, the champion was a woman who had 51 credit cards in her possession! How would you like to be paying those bills?

PEANUTS AND GRITS

Bill and Betty Wright and daughter Cynthia from Lawrenceburg, Tenn., surprised singer Pat Duval with a "Southern Christmas Package." Pat opened the surprise at Friar Tuck's the other morning to the delight of everyone. Pat, who hails from Florida, was beaming when he saw the contents: Sorghum peanuts and a package of grits. Now that's what I call real "Southern" hospitality.

While the Wrights were here they caught Pat's show at Las Laureles Lodge and saw all the sights. Nice warm friendly people. He's a banker and she is a piano teacher.

GOLF CREATOR

Mark Oman, golf devotee and founder of Golfaholics Anonymous, wants everyone to know he is now merchandising his product with coffee mugs, tumblers, towels, hats, sweat shirts, head covers and more. Three places carrying his products are Monterey Discount Golf and Tennis, The Red Rooster in The Barnyard and Mostly For Men at the Crossroads. Mark has been a golfaholic himself for more than 30 years. Now why didn't I think of that idea?

MAKING MY CHRISTMAS HAPPIER

Little did I realize that when I went to play golf with our mayor, Clint, Phil Dacey and Steve King on Christmas day that my Mom would pass away in a Sonora hospital, but I know it's a blessing. She'd been blind for more than 10 years because of diabetes and had recently developed cancer of the bladder. I know she's in a better place and will no longer have Guys and gals, give your parents plenty of love because this life is a short one. I appreciate the moral support given me by Clint and all my friends who expressed their concern.

On the same subject, I want to send my condolences to Pat Boland who lost his son in an auto accident last week.

ROCKETS ARE FIZZLING

What has happened to the Houston Rockets? They are not playing like the team that was in the NBA playoffs last year. The Lakers plastered them this past week, Could it be the "twin towners" are crumbling under all the pressure that is put on them? Or is it complacency? Houston fans would like to see them play with more intensity. The season is young and they'll rebound. I known owners Charlie and Kittzie Thomas have not lost the faith.

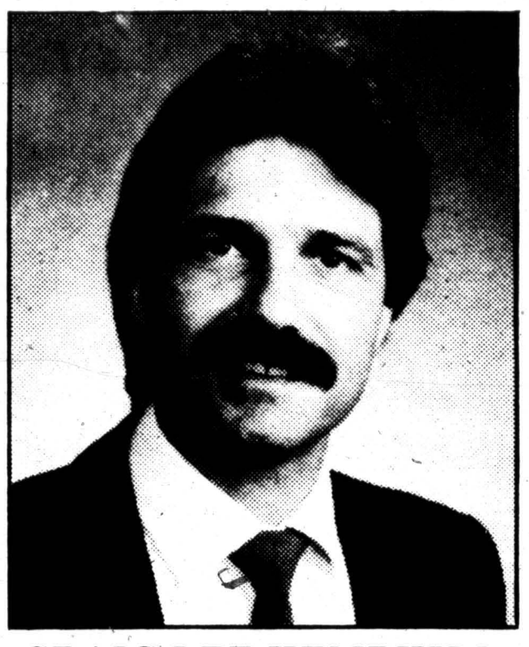
AUCTION GALLERIES UNLIMITED



CRAIG LEE HEMPHILL

You now have a choice. A new auction gallery has opened up on the Monterey Peninsula! Auction Galleries Unlimited, at 571 Lighthouse Ave., in Monterey has opened its doors to be of service to you.

We at Auction Galleries Unlimited want to change the means by which you sell your precious possessions. We are a bonded and licensed auction company with a combined experience of over 40 years in the auction business.

MR. CRAIG LEE HEMPHILL was first introduced to the Peninsula as auctioneer and manager of the Auction Studio in 1972. Learning from the ground up, Craig gained valuable knowledge and experience in all phases of the auction business. His extensive background in economics and marketing enabled him to expand the scope of a small family auction business. Specifically, Craig expanded the research library; tripled the preferred customer mailing list; developed an inhouse advertising agency covering the media, developed new display techniques for better marketing of your antiques and collectables.

TOM JOHNSON, Manager of Auction Galleries Unlimited, offers 12 years of experience in the auction industry. Promotions from Warehouseman to Manager of the Friday Sale and then to Manager of the entire Saturday Sale demanded not only familiarity with antiques and art, but also experience in research, display, cataloguing of the sale, and customer relations. Tom's interest in and knowledge of art, particularly in limited edition prints, assures you an open and honest appraisal for your special item.

GEORGE STONE comes to Auction Galleries Unlimited with over 30 years in the auction business, as a Truck Service Moving specialist. George who will take special interest in the transportation of your valuables. He and his assistant will personally and professionally wrap and pack everything that you want to go to auction.

Auction Galleries Unlimited is a professional auction corporation dedicated to giving advice and assistance to individuals, executors, and trustees in the disposition of single items, collections, and estates.

Our services include the liquidation of estates — from the furnishings to the real estate. The same service applies to businesses, whether large or small. We also have on-site sales. Whether your needs are a "Tent Sale" complete with catering, or a "Price Tag Sale", Auction Galleries Unlimited has the complete auction plan for you.

Our newly remodeled gallery offers an elegant setting in which to display and auction your valuables. Auctions are held once a month and run 2 days in length.

HOW IT WORKS:
If you are selling, our sliding scale consignment rates keep interest high for both buyer and seller. The higher the hammer price, the lower the commission percentage! On a per item basis, the percentages are 25% for $100 and under; 20% for $101 to $500; 15% for $501 to $1500, and 10% for $1501 and above.

As a seller, your benefits include extensive advertising, insurance, truck service, storage, prompt payment, and more money returned to you. As an added service, Craig Hemphill, your auctioneer, will confer with you in the privacy of YOUR OWN HOME OR BUSINESS and give you a FREE written estimate of your valuables. Consignments are by appt. only. In this manner we can give you our individual attention. We at Auction Galleries Unlimited are ready and willing to be of service to you. Call today for further information.

372-5221

Auction Galleries Unlimited thanks you for taking the time to read this invitation to participate in one of the oldest forms of free enterprise.

Happy 1987 to you all!

MAY the year 1987 be the most heavenly yet. As long as it is almost upon us, we might as well forget all those mistakes of yesteryear and make the best of a fresh new beginning.

Take a deep breath. Vacation is over and it's back to the social swirl.

After all, Tony Randall is coming to town Jan. 10 to be the Community Hospital Luncheon speaker; The Chef's Association will award those kings and queens of cuisine on the 18th; and the fabulous larger-than-life Gourmet Gala returns for a second booking of Jan. 24. Here's the latest on the big G.G.

MARCH OF DIMES GOURMET GALA THEME

The Second Annual Gourmet Gala given by The Monterey Vineyard/March of Dimes is coming up. This black-tie-celebrity-cooking-competition-dinner-dance will be held in the ballroom of the Monterey Shearton Hotel Jan. 24 as a fundraiser for the fight against birth defects.

The premiere G.G. was an unqualified success with sports on Lifestyles of the Rich and Famous, Entertainment Tonight, and Good Morning America. Celebrities included Jane Wyatt, Hank Ketcham, Allen Funt and Clint Eastwood (before Mayor became his first name).

The premiere Monterey Film Festival follows the G.G. by a scant two weeks so the chosen theme this year is On Location in Monterey. MFF president David Bean will be Gala M.C. Co-chairmen Artie Early and Gary Ibsen have garnered a whole passel of dignitaries, chefs, cuisine critics and stars, stars, stars!

Judging of the amateur celebrity chef recipes will follow rules established by the American Culinary Federation. Each dish will be rated on a 40-point scale — most heavily on taste, but also on presentation, creativity and texture. The three highest scores will receive awards.

Bert Cutino CBC/AAC (v.p. of Amer. Culinary Fed. Western Reg.) heads the conglomerate of distinguished judge. On the panel: Pierre Franey (N.Y. Times), Martha Stewart (author), Jeremiah Tower (owns Stars restaurant, S.F.), James Berrien (Food & Wine mag.), Anthony Dias Blue (Bon Appetite Mag), and William E. Rice (Chicago Tribune).

In order to have food to judge, chefs must have kitchens and local designers to construct kitchens inspired by movies filmed here. Examples: The Sandpiper, One-eyed Jacks, Cannery Row and National Velvet.

Now, for all you stargazers. Local stars: Kimberly Hunt,

THE BEST JAGUAR EVER BUILT.
Named "Best Buy" in the over $25,000 luxury sedan class, the Jaguar XJ6 is the standard by which other luxury cars are judged.

For the second consecutive year, the editors of Motor Trend magazine have selected the Jaguar XJ6 as "best buy" from among all high-priced luxury sedans. Once again, the best Jaguar ever built has been recognized as a remarkable automobile, as a standard by which other luxury sedans are judged.

The criteria that this most honored Jaguar has established are not easily met. Developed through years of evolutionary refinement and painstaking attention to detail, the Jaguar's classic beauty, luxurious appointments and impeccable road manners are testimony to its sterling reputation.

Universally acclaimed as one of the most artful automobiles ever conceived, the Jaguar sedan's gently curving silhouette suggests graceful motion even at rest. It is a shape that endures—a masterwork of automotive sculpture.

Inside the Jaguar sedan's spacious cabin, the driver and passengers enjoy a most elegant setting. Far removed from the typical automobile interior, the Jaguar's cabin is a refreshing retreat, rich with fine leather, rare walnut and comforting silence. Numerous convenience accessories, including automatic climate control, sunroof, a trip computer, an 80-watt stereo sound system and cruise control, make Jaguar motoring a rewarding experience.

For all its beauty and luxury, the Jaguar XJ6 is also an agile and spirited road machine. Utilizing precisely tuned four wheel independent suspension and a rigid chassis, the Jaguar sedan achieves a remarkable balance of race-worthy handling characteristics and supple ride. A six cylinder dual overhead cam engine provides ample power for the most energetic driver.

The object of rigorous quality controls, the 1987 Jaguar XJ6 sedan is backed by a three year/36,000 mile warranty.

Your Jaguar dealer cordially invites you to spend a few very enjoyable minutes behind the wheel of this much celebrated sedan. He'll also be happy to provide full details of the Jaguar limited warranty. For the name of the Jaguar dealer nearest you, dial 1-800-4-JAGUAR. Jaguar Cars Inc., Leonia, NJ 07605.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

'You know best, Oh Lord'

Invocation to the Carmel Rotary Club
Dec. 30, 1981

Help us to renew our dedication to service above self for that is what this human pilgrimage is all about. Without service to others it doesn't make much sense — does it?

One of God's great soldiers, the Basque, St. Ignatius Loyola (Inigo Lopez de Loyola 1491-1556), wrote these words in the 16th century:

"Teach us le Bon Dieu to serve Thee
As Thou deservest best
To toil and not to stop to rest
To give and not to count the cost
To fight and never to say that all is lost
To labor and to seek not reward.
Is not doing Thy will enough reward, Oh Lord?"

Just 66 years ago come Friday next, a Reverand Levi J. Puver, D.D., a Protestant Divine of Puritanical persuasion, prayed over the Council of Glouchester, Mass. His words shocked the city but we doubt if they shocked them into action. "We pray for those who are too lazy to vote but not too lazy to grumble; for those who believe all laws should be enforced except the laws they do not like.

"Perhaps it is too much to ask that they be blessed and the only thing you can do is to let them go to hell where they belong, but you know best, Oh Lord."

Finally we close with these thoughts from the poet Phylis McGinley, my friend, entitled The Old Philanthropist:

"His millions make museums bright
Harvard anticipates his will
While his young typist weeps at night
Over a druggist's bill."

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Chances are that, when you were 15 years old, you sometimes misplaced a house key or other important objects or you couldn't recall an address or phone number. But it certainly wasn't a traumatic experience in your life. Yet, if the same thing happens to you 50 years later, at age 65, you're likely to panic, thinking senility has set in or old age is catching up with your mind.

That's precisely the kind of unrealistic reasoning which Dr. Robin West, a psychology professor at the University of Florida is fighting. In her book, "Memory Fitness Over 40," Dr. West concludes that older people who panic over minor memory lapses that are common to persons of all ages actually "cause the very problem you fear; you WILL lose some of your memory ability because anxiety interfers dramatically with effective remembering." Dr. West recommends that older people participate in such memory-exercising activities as games like "Trivial Pursuit" and recounting past times to younger people. In other words, not only is reminiscing fun, it's also good for you!

Edith Truesdell

Edith Park Truesdell of Carmel Valley Manor died Dec. 12 at her home. She was 98.

Born Feb. 15, 1888 in Derby, Conn., she was a well-known artist who exhibited her work into her 90s. She began painting when she was a schoolgirl and received her early training at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts from 1906 to 1912 and again from 1915 to 1916, and later at the UCLA Art Department.

With her husband, the late Jack Truesdell, a lawyer with the U.S. Bureau of Indian Affairs, she spent many years in the Colorado Rockies during the summers, and the rest of the time between Los Angeles and the Southwest desert. Mr. Truesdell specialized in Indian water rights, and she did her painting while he was working.

After her husband died in Colorado in 1953, she resumed teaching and changed from watercolors to acrylics. Her work has been described by art critics as "full of life, mystery, intensity, joy and enormous action."

At her request, no services took place. Her ashes will be scattered at sea. The Mission Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Branding: time-tested ranchers' work

BRANDING. It may be a passing attraction for fans of the Saturday western, but it's an active part of ranching life in Carmel Valley. A talent handed down from one generation to another among cowboys, it is a necessary skill that means the very survival of a ranch.

IN A PUFF of smoke Kent Heneks applies the ranch brand to a bleating calf.

Amid dust, a blazing sun and the deafening din of crying cattle, cowboys gathered in mid-December for the first winter calf branding at Carmel Valley's Rana Creek Ranch.

Situated on about 12,000 acres of serene winding pastures about 20 miles east of Carmel, Rana Creek Ranch is one of the last remaining working cattle ranches in the Monterey Peninsula area.

And last month before the onslaught of heavy winter storms, Rana Creek Ranch Manager Kent Heneks, along with brother Brian, the ranch foreman, were just beginning the busy branding season.

"Branding is the fun part of the job," Kent said. "It's the activity you do a few days out of the year and that's what everybody thinks ranching is. They think we brand cattle all day and week long — but we'll only do it about 10 or 12 times a year."

Story and photos by Holly McFarland

During those branding dates, neighboring cowboys lend a hand. This winter's day drew a select crew of experienced help.

Bill Askew, who hangs his hat as the city of Carmel's Superintendent of Public Works, prides himself on being a good roper. Askew brought his son, Bill, to get in on the branding activity.

Local rodeo talent Pete Azevedo and veteran cowboy Bill Dorrance were just some of the cowboys who helped to rope about 84 calves that afternoon.

It was organized in the corral area. Good branding is not fighting with animals. Good roping is an art. Bill Dorrance, for instance, is a master at it. Dorrance circled around the corral, studying the huddle of calves in the corner with a rope coiled tightly in his hands. Finally eyeing a stray calf, he gently lowered his loop over the head and with a tug the animal followed from behind.

Roping partner in this noontime tango was Brian Heneks, also on horseback. He cocked back his hat, wiped the sweat off his face and shook out a broad loop in his rope, stalking a calf across the dusty corral.

As though someone had laid chalk marks on the ground, Brian cast the rope just right. The open loop fell softly on target. The object is to get the loop down in front of the calf's back feet so he'll step into it. This calf finally went over on his side and was only a few feet away from the branding fire. The two men on horseback had the animal roped from the head and hind legs so it was easy to drag him closer toward the fire.

THE ROPING ROMANCE was done, and now it was time for the serious work at hand. Branding irons were heated over a wood fire to a red-hot glow. Each calf was branded across the shoulder and its ear nipped for identification. Innoculations were administered to prevent disease, and a trace of copper for their nutrition was injected at the same time.

With the pass of a knife, the males were castrated and calves showing horns were dehorned, not only to prevent injuries from fighting but also because hornless animals are easier to handle in the chutes at shipping time.

"Branding is just an identification, a proof of ownership and a theft deterrent," Kent Heneks explained.

And mixing cattle with the neighboring herd can prove an expensive mistake. Also, transporting the animals across the state to feed or to sell at an auction could be a costly mistake for ranchers who would have to find the rightful owner.

"You need to know that all those cattle belong to that owner," Heneks said. "There are three legal brand locations — the shoulder, the ribs and the hip. You have to brand in your location. Your brand is registered in the state like a license plate on a car. You can't get a license plate and then change the numbers."

Heneks also explained that branding is the law and each state has its own inspector that is hired specifically for that job.

"So that's why we use the ear mark and the brand across the left hip," Heneks added.

By the count of 25, all the tedious work was done to each calf. Free to return to their mothers, the animals, each a few months old and weighing almost 200 pounds, soon would be scampering across winter pastures.

Heneks, who was assured that the day's work was well under control, cocked back his hat and wiped the sweat from his forehead.

"The only thing we worry about are cattle prices and the weather," he said.

Heneks couples his even-tempered disposi-

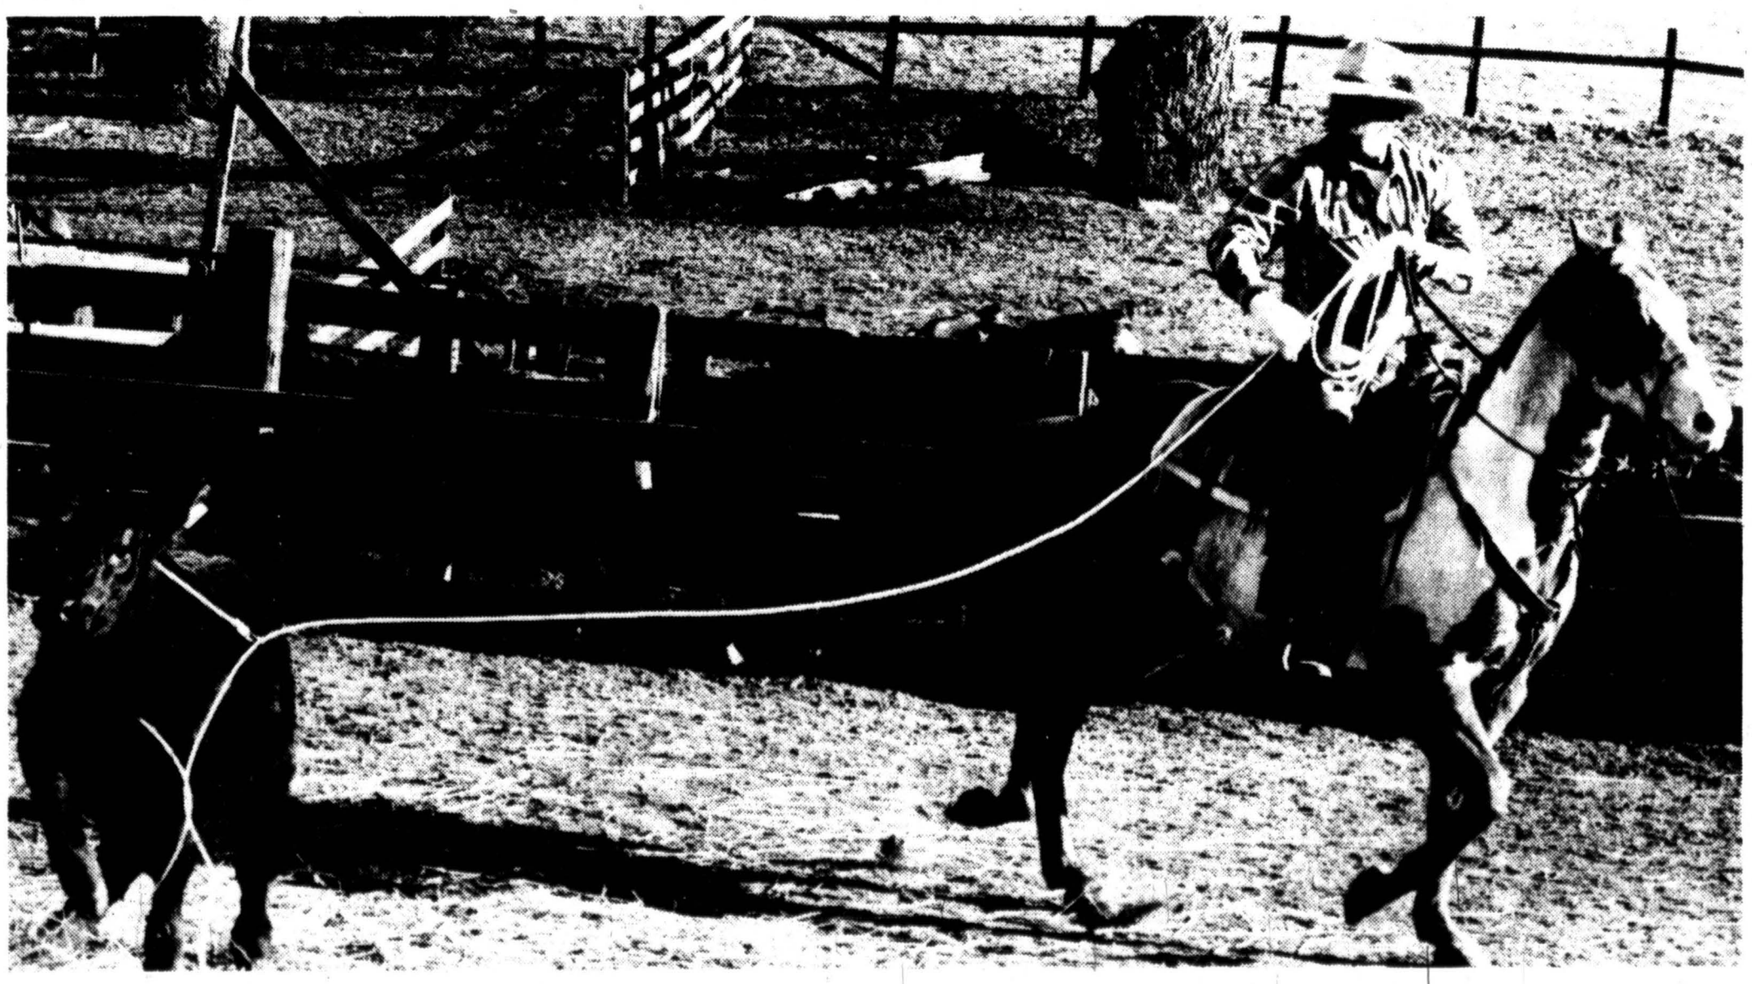
A SURE EYE and a steady hand are the trademarks of a great roper. Bill Dorrance brings a veteran's skill to the mid-winter round-up at Rana Creek Ranch in Carmel Valley.

AS THE branding irons stay hot in the fire, cowboys take a break from the hard work of roping and branding. Shown at rest are, from left, Dave Dorrance, Bill Askew, Steve Davis and Kent Heneks.



PETE AZEVEDO, a regular competitor on the professional rodeo circuit, polishes his working skills during branding day at Rana Creek Ranch east of Carmel Valley Village. The trick to roping is to study the huddle of calves and then gently loop an animal as it separates from the herd.

Valley ranchers use quarter horses, computers

tion with 13 years of experience at Rana Creek Ranch, along with a degree in agricultural sciences.

"It's really a business management game now," he said.

There are hardships that can come the way of even the most experienced rancher, arriving in the form of disease, drought, cattle stealing and price drops.

Brian and Kent seem blessed with an extra measure of humor to get them through the rough times. When asked about the social life among the ranchers in Carmel Valley, Kent quipped, "the only things that bring ranchers together are weddings, funerals and brandings."

'One of the things I like about ranching is the variety because I might be working on a map or on a computer in the office one day and the next day I'll be helping with the feeding or fixing fences.'

But that afternoon's branding wasn't as much social as laborious for the ranchers. The sun had disappeared and a handful of cowboys were silhouetted against the late afternoon sky. There was a cold chill in the air and their hands were like those of athletes, struggling through the first day of spring training. Muscles soon grew tired.

The first branding meant 84 calves had been attended to.

Shortly after the daylong branding, Heneks buckled down to the paperwork — the science of business in his rustic cabin at the ranch.

Many of the major decisions were worked out on his computer. Whether to sell or buy cattle, how much feed to add if there's a light rainfall and how to handle a slow market — all must be worked out.

"This computer helps keep an inventory, do cost projections and analysis," Heneks said.

Some aspects of ranching can't be worked out on a computer. In many cases ranching is a waiting game.

There are definite cycles. Heneks explained that the calves are weaned in the fall. Then hopefully the rains come and the grasses get high enough for the calves to feed on during the winter months. By mid-summer they should be heavy enough to go to market.

Heneks leafed through the Wall Street Journal to cite the listings of calf prices from the day before.

"Ranchers actually get a small percentage of the beef dollar," he explained. "Last July we got 60 cents a pound on our calves."

Ranchers, he said, try to coincide selling their cattle with favorable market conditions. Buyers will either visit the surrounding ranches, or the ranchers will ship them to an auction. Some are forced to take the cattle to Nevada or an area that has had a good winter for the cattle to put on the extra weight.

"If I wanted to sell my cattle in July because the market wasn't what I wanted, I'd call a ranch up where I could pasture the cattle," Heneks explained. "The calves would be up there until the grass turns. They would weigh about 700 or 800 pounds, then they would go to a feed lot. They would be there about 100 days and go to slaughter from there."

Although electronics have modernized ranching decisions and know-how, Heneks explained that the basics will always remain the same.

"There's no better way to rope than by horse, although some places use trucks or motorcycles. But how are you going to attend a cow giving birth if you show up on a motorcycle?"

Branding, of coure, is another aspect that has changed little.

"One of the things I like about ranching is the variety because I might be working on a map or on a computer in the office one day and the next day I'll be helping with the feeding or fixing fences.

"But branding is the highlight of the year."

INNOCULATIONS, like this one administered by Dave Dorrance, fight disease in the herd and add vitamins to the calves' diet. (Photograph by Holly McFarland).

Feast inaugurates All Saints' anniversary celebrations

ALL SAINTS' Church will begin its year-long celebration of its 75th anniversary with a 16th century-style Boar's Head Dinner, served Friday and Saturday, Jan. 9-10, in the church parish hall.

The event is a gala spectacle featuring costumed musicians, carolers, kings and bishops, plus servings of true wild boar meat at each evening repast.

The evening will begin with an Elizabethan pageant in which the boar's head is piped into the dining hall by shepherds, the three kings and pipes bearing the traditional Yule light. Bishops Shannon Mallory of the Diocese of El Camino Real and Matthew Bigliardi, retired Bishop of Oregon, will each portray the Bishop of Myra who was the legendary St. Nicholas, the original Father Christmas.

Dining fare will include traditional boar meat, vegetables and sauces and a special Yule log dessert. Diners will be entertained throughout the evening by a madrigal choir and orchestra.

There will be two seatings each evening, at 5:30 and 8 p.m. A wassail bowl, punched and unpunched, will be served a half hour prior to each seating.

Tickets are $12.50 for adults and $7 for children under 10. Reservations are required and can be made by calling the parish office, 624-3883.

Also as part of the celebrations of the 75th anniversary of All Saints' Church, cartoonist Eldon Dedini has designed a limited edition, four-color poster depicting Carmel beach with a host of celebrities and community residents.

The posters will be available during the boar's head dinners. The artist will be present to autograph the posters from 5:30 to 8 p.m. both days.

The boar's head dinner is one of many activities that mark this year of celebration for the church. All Saints' was originally founded in 1912, four years before Carmel was incorporated as a city. Its first home is now Carmel city hall on Monte Verde. The church was moved to its present location at Ninth and Dolores in 1950.

All proceeds from the year's activities will go toward community and worldwide outreach, from the Monterey Peninsula to Uganda, the Philippines and Madras.

For more information on the 75th anniversary, call the parish office.

AT THE CHERRY FOUNDATION

By Linda Coppens

'Little House' still treasured

FORMER CARMELITE Virginia Lee Burton wrote The Little House in 1942. It won the Caldicott medal for the most distinguished picture book of the year, and is still a classic. Novelist Anne Tyler praised it in a recent issue of The New York Times Review of Books.

In "Why I Still Treasure The Little House," Tyler reiterated the story. A little house exists happily in the countryside until urban sprawl encroaches, and it is unhappy with the city noises. Later the great-great-granddaughter of the house's builder moves it to the country where it once again lives happily among the apple orchards. Tyler wrote that the book offers wisdom about time.

"(It) showed me how the world works: how the years flowed by and people altered and nothing could ever stay the same."

Burton, a talented artist and writer, was the daughter of Jeanne Cherry and her first husband, MIT dean Alfred Burton. Growing up in Carmel, she studied design with the Hestwoods, then won a scholarship to the California School of Fine Arts in San Francisco.

Later employed as a staff artist for the Boston Transcript, she sketched such celebrities as Eddie Cantor and Florenz Ziegfeld.

After marriage to sculptor George Demitrios, she began writing children's books. The Little House was inspired by the Demitrios' own turn-of-the-century residence in Folly Cove, Massachusetts, a community that reminded Burton of the Carmel of her childhood — simplicity of living and neighborly friendliness.

VIRGINIA LEE Burton, circa 1952, in a portrait from the archives of the Carl Cherry Foundation.

Among her other childrens' books were Katie and the Big Snow, Mabelle the Cable Car, and Mike Mulligan and his Steam Shovel, written for her youngest son Michael.

Burton also sculpted, painted, illustrated books, was a musician, and founded the Folly Cove Designers, a handicrafts cooperative. Like her well-known mother, Jeanne Cherry, Burton was a woman of many talents.

Gourley's 'Decorated Papers' exhibited at Evans Gallery

PAULA MARIA Gourley, a native of Carmel and instructor in hand bookbinding and associate director of the Institute for the Books Arts, will have a one-woman exhibit entitled "Decorated Papers" at the Marjorie Evans Gallery in Sunset Center, Carmel. The collection can be viewed Jan. 1 through 30.

The exhibition features a series of hand-decorated papers designed especially for fine hand bookbinding and letterpress printing. Techniques include Turkish watercolor marbling, colored paste papers, monoprints and chromecote papers with gold leaf application.

All are the work of Gourley, who is a specialist in the art of Turkish marbling or "ebru-su." She has taught the art in numerous institutions in both the United States and Europe and examples of her work are in many private and public collections around the world.

Gourley began her work with decorated papers in 1976 while a student at Goddard College in Vermont. Her earliest works were oil-marbled papers and handmade papers with colored pulp used as a design inclusion.

Later, in 1977, she became interested in the art of Turkish marbling and has specialized in this form, developing a number of new patterns in addition to mastering the traditional design forms. She is currently at work on a book about her experiences in the art of marbling.

The exhibit, based on papers designed for fine handbound books, also encompasses several other techniques in paper decoration and will be augmented with examples of bindings made with these various decorated papers.

Gourley is an active member of several organizations of bookworkers in the U.S. and Europe and is a full-time instructor in Hand Bookbinding at the University of Alabama Graduate School of Library Service.

Western dance classes resume

The Monterey and Salinas recreation departments sponsor Western dance classes designed for all ages.

Classes meet once a week and include instruction in such popular Western dances as the Two-Step, Fourteen-Step, Slappin' Leather, Western Swing and more.

In Monterey, classes begin Monday, Jan. 5, at the Monterey Recreation Center, 777 Pearl St. Pre-registration is required.

For more information, contact your local recreation department or call 625-2092 or 646-3873.

Television production taught

The Mission Trails Regional Occupation Program in cooperation with the Monterey County Office of Education is offering a class in television production in Salinas.

The class is offered to adults and high school students interested in careers in television production and related broadcast skills. Students will be trained using the equipment and facilities of the MCOE television station to produce class video projects for broadcast on the educational channel. All aspects of production, ncluding camera, sound, lighting, editing and direction, will be covered.

The class meets Monday through Friday at various times. For information, call the MCOE studio at 755-6424. The course is free. Students should contact their school career centers for registration. Adults may enroll at the studio.

Beaded gowns recall 'jazz age'

"The Elegant Jazz Age" is the theme of an exhibit of beaded dresses made between 1914 and 1930. The Costume Committee of the Monterey History and Art Association has assembled the collection, which will be shown through January at Pacific House in Monterey.

Admission is free to the exhibit, open 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily. The committee devoted more than 100 hours to restoring a single fragile, beaded gown. Accessories of the period will also be shown.

Pacific House is located near Custom House Plaza in Monterey. For details, call 372-3740.

Gus Arriola talks to writers

Cartoonist Gus Arriola will discuss "Being Funny is No Laughing Matter" at the Wednesday, Jan. 7, gathering of the Monterey Peninsula Writers' Club.

Arriola's cartoon strip, Gordo, was syndicated to newspapers for more than 45 years and was also the subject of eight books.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church, 501 Eldorado in Monterey.

Polly Kenaston paintings shown

Carmel resident Polly Kenaston will be the featured artist throughout January in the gallery of the Carmel Foundation.

Kenaston said she has always liked to paint, but her career as an interior designer left her no time.

"I have designed everything from condos to railroad cars. My painting was on Sundays and holidays — whenever I wasn't working seven days a week — a Sunday painter. Now I am delighted to be a Monday painter."

She has lived in southern California, and her media are oil and watercolor. She has painted with Clarence Bates and is now working with Elizabeth Palmer at the foundation.

The Carmel Foundation is on Lincoln and Eighth. Viewing hours are 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, and 1 to 5 p.m. weekends.

Bookmobile closes for repairs

The Bookmobile of the Monterey County Library will be out of service through Jan. 3. In addition to some routine maintenance, the Bookmobile will be painted with a new design which features Monterey County scenery. The artwork was produced by Carmel Valley watercolorist Ron Bean.

The County Library Bookmobile has been in operation for more than 30 years. It currently provides free library services to 24 different neighborhoods throughout the county. For information on the stop nearest you, call 424-3244.

Career Bridge aids job seekers

The "Career Bridge" program of the YWCA is seeking unemployed single parents, homemakers in transition and AFDC recipients to participate in a no-cost, needs assessment survey to help increase employability.

The YWCA, in cooperation with the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District Vocational Education Department, offers Career Bridge beginning in January. It is an employment counseling and career opportunity program that includes workshops dealing with self-esteem, career and life planning and resume writing. It will lead to vocational training and entry into the MPUSD regional occupation program.

Career Bridge is a public service project of the YWCA of the Monterey Peninsula and is funded in part by the Carl D. Perkins Vocational Education Division of the California State Department of Education through the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District.
